Where In Myrtle Beach is Professor Wonder?

WonderWorks celebrates five year anniversary with scavenger hunt for free tickets

Myrtle Beach, SC (May 4, 2016) – This May, Myrtle Beach’s iconic upside-down building turns five years old. As part of its celebration, the team at WonderWorks is sending guests on a hunt to find their beloved mascot, Professor Wonder, and earn free tickets to the family friendly, indoor amusement park!

Throughout the day on May 14th, Professor Wonder will move between several different well-known locations in Myrtle Beach, and give away free tickets. Those who hope to spot the professor and win big can find hints about his location by following WonderWorks on twitter or by liking their Facebook page.

“We are excited to kick off vacation season by celebrating our anniversary and having a little fun with our amazing and loyal customers,” said General Manager Robert Stinnett. “Later this year, we will be debuting some changes and additions to the property. With each year that goes by we aim to attract first time vacation goers and repeat locals with new exhibits and updates, so that everyone who enters has a fresh and unique experience!”

WonderWorks combines education with entertainment, in an effort to contribute to the movement of increasing the number of young minds interested in STEM related education and careers. Being on top of the latest news in the STEM world is priority for the team, and helps keep the attraction full of the most unique and cutting-edge exhibits.

To find out where in Myrtle Beach Professor Wonder will be on May 14th so that you can score free tickets, be sure to follow WonderWorks on Facebook and Twitter at:
