Bewitching “Outta Control Spooktacular Dinner Show” Returns to WonderWorks Orlando This Halloween Season

ORLANDO, Florida - (September 9, 2024) - Each year, families anticipate the return of one of Orlando’s best family-friendly Halloween shows, and now it’s officially back by popular demand. Guests can start reserving their tickets for WonderWorks Orlando’s highly anticipated "Outta Control Spooktacular Magic Dinner Show" to make celebrating Halloween in Central Florida even more fun. This Halloween-themed dinner show will run night from October 4 to 31, 2024, making it a spooktacular holiday event that families will not want to miss.

“No one does Halloween like Orlando, so we’re excited to offer a spooky show experience for the whole family here at WonderWorks. Audiences of all ages are sure to be laughing along the whole time and leave amazed,” said Brian Wayne, general manager at WonderWorks Orlando.

The popular nightly dinner show at WonderWorks Orlando will adopt a spooky theme for the fall holiday season. Shows will run nightly at 6 pm, with additional shows at 8 pm on Friday and Saturday nights. This family-friendly entertainment experience gives everyone a chance to have some mystifying fun, howl with laughter (no full moon required), and make memories together. Guests are also encouraged to dress in costume to add to the festive experience.

New additions to this year’s show include spooky tricks with a ghostly white handkerchief, a discussion with the audience about their favorite scary movies, mind reading with the help of Dracula, a voodoo doll routine using a lucky volunteer from the audience, and more. The show will be performed five nights per week by fan-favorite magician Tony Brent, donning a new peculiar persona fit for spooky good-times. A cast of ghoulish guest magicians will perform the other two nights of the week showing off new tricks that have been brewing in their own cauldrons.

Tickets to the holiday dinner show include unlimited cheese and pepperoni pizza, salad, dessert, soda, beer, and wine. Halloween-themed cocktails will also be available for purchase for adults. Shows often sell out, so guests should reserve their seats online ahead of time.

“You won’t want to miss this spooktacular show,” said Tony Brent, the headlining magician at The Outta Control Magic Comedy Dinner Show. “We’ve got a lot of tricks up our sleeves this Halloween season! And maybe there will be some treats, too!”

Guests will want to watch the WonderWorks Orlando social media pages for sneak peaks of this year’s show and info on other upcoming specials and events. On the horizon, WonderWorks plans to honor Breast Cancer Awareness Month this October with new programs and events to raise awareness, collect donations for research, and spread hope and positivity amongst our community. WonderWorks will recognize the month with fundraising opportunities that benefit the Florida Breast Cancer Foundation, a Climb for a Cure challenge at the ropes course, giveaways, pop-up labs, and special merchandise.
